PREFACE

FACTS is the North Carolina Central University fact book. It has been produced annually by the Office of Research, Evaluation and Planning since 1969. Over the years, the format and the tables have changed with the changing needs of the University. Experience and technological advances have allowed expansions and improvements in tables and graphs that make up the book. The purpose, however, remains the same. FACTS is designed to provide faculty, staff and administration with a common core of data and information about the University which may be used in reporting, planning and proposal preparation. This is not a static document - suggestions for changes, additions and improvements are welcome.

Ms. Helen Faucette, Ms. Meena Wilson and Ms. Valerie Williams have spent many hours preparing FACTS for 1986-87. Dr. Karen Gentemann prepared various official lists and updated many parts of the "Facts about the University" section. Ms. CoCo Hutchison provided support for Ms. Faucette, Ms. Wilson and Ms. Williams. The finished document is one of the best we have ever produced and thanks go to everyone involved in the production.

MISSION STATEMENT

North Carolina Central University is a comprehensive university offering programs at the bachelor's and master's levels, and at the first professional level in law.

The primary mission of North Carolina Central University is to provide its students with an educational environment that will stimulate intellectual curiosities; enhance and develop academic and professional skills; instill a sense of pride, dignity and discipline; and promote a consciousness of social responsibility and dedication to the advancement of the general welfare of the people of North Carolina, of the United States, and of the world.

Historically, the majority of the constituents served by North Carolina Central University have been black. While the University will continue to educate its traditional clientele, it will continue, and increasingly seek, to be an educational resource to all of the people in its service area.

The university community recognizes that its student enrollment will reflect more diversity in all respects. This new diversity will constitute a major challenge in the faculty's responsibility of teaching, in research, in the development of curriculum, in the availability of programs which support learning, in the University's outreach, and in the effectiveness of its administrative units. While the teaching of students is the University's primary focus, research and its application for the benefits of the broader community are vital to the mission and must be pursued vigorously. The continued development of intellectual skills and self-discipline, by all who reap the benefits of the University, comprise the core of every aspect and phase of University life.

HISTORY

North Carolina Central University, a state-supported liberal arts institution, was chartered in 1909 as a private institution and opened to students on July 10, 1910. It was founded by Dr. James E. Shepard. From the beginning, when it was known as the National Religious Training School and Chautauqua, its purpose has been the development in young men and women of the character and sound academic training requisite for real service to the nation. To this end, the training of all students has been entrusted to the most capable teachers available.

The institution's early years were characterized by a wealth of enthusiasm and high endeavor, but not of money. Private donations and student fees constituted the total financial support of the school, and the heavy burden of collecting funds rested on the President.

In 1915 the school was sold and reorganized, then becoming the National Training School. During this period of its history Mrs. Russell Sage of New York was a generous benefactor of the school.

In 1923 the General Assembly of North Carolina appropriated funds for the purchase and maintenance of the school; thus in that year it became a publicly-supported institution, and was renamed Durham State Normal School. Two years later the Legislature converted it into the North Carolina College for Negroes, dedicating it to the offering of liberal arts education and the preparation of teachers and principals of secondary schools.

At its session the General Assembly began a program of expansion of the college plant to conform to the needs of an enlarged academic program. The interest of the Honorable Angus W. McLean, then Governor of North Carolina, and his belief in the institution aided greatly in the promotion of this program. State appropriations were supplemented by a generous gift from B. N. Duke, and by contributions from citizens of Durham in 1929.

The College was accredited by the Southern Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools as an "A" class institution in 1937 and was admitted to membership in this association in 1957.

The 1930's afforded federal grants and State appropriations for a new program of physical expansion and improvement of educational facilities; this program continued until the beginning of World War II.

The General Assembly of 1939 authorized the establishment of graduate work in liberal arts and the professions. Pursuant thereto graduate courses in the Arts and Sciences were first offered in that same year; the School of Law began operation in 1940, and the School of Library Science was established in 1941.

In 1947 the State Legislature changed the name of the institution to the North Carolina College at Durham.

On October 6, 1947, Dr. James E. Shepard, the founder and President of the college, died. The Board of Trustees appointed an interim committee consisting of Dr. Albert E. Manley, Dean of the College of Arts and Sciences; Miss Ruth G. Rush, Dean of Women; and Dr. Albert L. Turner, Dean of the School of Law, to administer the affairs of the institution until the election of the second president.

On January 20, 1948, Dr. Alfonso Elder was elected President of the institution. At the time of his election, Dr. Elder was serving as head of the Graduate Department of Education and had formerly been Dean of the College of Arts and Sciences. Dr. Elder retired September 1, 1963.

Dr. Samuel P. Massie was elected as the third President of the College on August 9, 1963. Dr. Massie came to the institution from Washington, D. C., where he was Associate Program Director for Undergraduate Science Education of the National Science Foundation and Professor and Chairman of the Department of Pharmaceutical Chemistry at Howard University. He resigned on February 1, 1966.

The Board of Trustees appointed an interim committee consisting of William Jones, Business Manager; Dr. Helen G. Edmonds, Graduate Dean; and Dr. William H. Brown, Professor of Education, to administer the affairs of the institution until the fourth president took office.

On July 20, 1966, Dr. Albert N. Whiting was named fourth president of the institution. He came to North Carolina College from Baltimore, Maryland, where he had been Dean of Faculty of Morgan State College. Dr. Whiting served as President from July 1, 1967 until June 30, 1983.

In 1969, during Dr. Whiting's term of office, the State Legislature again changed the name of the institution to North Carolina Central University. On July 1, 1972, North Carolina Central University became a constituent institution of the University of North Carolina.

On July 1, 1983, Dr. LeRoy T. Walker, became interim Chancellor of the University. He had also served the institution as Chairman of the Department of Physical Education and Recreation, Head Track Coach and Vice Chancellor for University Relations. At their February, 1986 meeting, the U.N.C. Board of Governors, on the request of the University's Board of Trustees, decreed that Dr. Walker was Chancellor of the University rather than Interim Chancellor and made that action retroactive to the beginning of his term.

Dr. Tyronza R. Richmond, formerly Dean of the School of Business, succeeded Dr. Walker as Chancellor on July 1, 1986. Prior to his arrival at NCCU, Dr. Richmond was Associate Dean and Professor at the School of Business and Public Administration at Howard University.
