Introduction

Curriculum materials centers (CMCs) are specialized centers or libraries developed with the purpose of supporting teacher education programs within colleges and universities. The collections consist of instructional materials used in preschool through high school classrooms. Many centers also provide access to a variety of educational equipment or technologies found in the PK-12 schools. CMCs are usually found within the academic libraries or schools of education and have a variety of names such as Teachering Materials Center, Education Resource Commons, Curriculum Laboratory, Learning Resource Center, etc.

The last directory of curriculum materials centers was published in 2009. The 7th edition of the directory builds upon the foundations of previous research and publications. The first national directory was published in 1981 by Lois J. Lehman and Eva L. Kiewitt.1 The 1981 directory described 187 CMCs; the 2009 edition included 204 CMCs.2 The first major study by Beatrice Leary in 1938 reported 35 facilities located in academia.3 The next major study of CMCs was in 1947 by Frances Drag. Drag reported 145 such facilities located in institutions of higher education.4 Since 2009, anecdotal reports of closings or reductions of CMCs increased the value of an updated directory.

The 2014 directory committee members made a conscious effort to emphasize that the directory was a listing of centers AND collections when contacting libraries or schools of education. A 2005 study of Michigan CMCs revealed that numerous CMC librarians and/or personnel did not understand the researcher was interested in not just centers; collections not housed in centers were also of interest. Understanding this line of inquiry lead to a fuller disclosure of CMCs (centers AND collections) within academic institutions in the State of Michigan.5

The committee for the 7th edition followed a similar methodology and procedure of the 2009 committee. Committee members used the extensive database developed by the 2009 committee, divided the listings between the committee members, and updated the information. The updated listing consisted of 589 librarians or other CMC personnel. The committee members then contacted identified CMC personnel or librarians via email or telephone to verify any changes. Additional CMCs were added to the list when found; closed facilities were deleted.

An electronic survey (Appendix M) was developed based on the 2009 survey, with modifications to elicit responses, hopefully, from librarians or CMC personnel with just curriculum collections. An invitation to participate in the electronic survey was sent directly to all CMC personnel included in the updated database. In addition an announcement was sent to the Education and Behavior Sciences Section (EBSS) listserv announcing the survey. The survey was also sent to Canadian CMCs when the committee was able to identify them. Three messages were sent via the EBSS listserv in the summer and fall. Committee members followed up with personal emails to those institutions assigned to them who did not respond to the first announcement to encourage participation.

There were 161 responses to the 2014 survey. The drop from 204 from the 2009 survey, possibly confirms the anecdotal closing reports. A 2014 update of the Michigan CMCs revealed that 30% of the state’s academic curriculum centers closed or reduced their square footage dramatically.

This edition of the directory includes information about budgets, collections, access, staffing, administrative organization, location and contact information for the majority of the CMCs listed. A number of CMCs opted not to share detailed information but provided contact information. Please contact the center directly for more information.

The CMCs are listed alphabetically by their parent institution in the Table of Contents and can be accessed directly by clicking on their respective page number. In addition to the alphabetical listing there are 14 Appendices that aggregate information on type of institution, size of program, budgets, staffing, location, organization, equipment and resources. This can be accessed directly by clicking on their respective page numbers in the Table of Contents.

While this directory does not offer a comprehensive listing of CMCs, it does provide information for comparison and/or contact. The committee wishes to thank CMC librarians or personnel who helped in this endeavor to update these unique centers and collections. If you wish your collection or facility to be included in the directory, please contact Judy Walker, jwalker@uncc.edu. Committee members also wish to thank all CMC librarians and personnel who contributed to the information for the 2014 Directory of Curriculum Materials Centers and Collections.

Additional Comments

Campus growth plans aim to move the AU School of Education, Teaching and Health to another part of campus far away from the main library. Thus, plans are in place to move the CMC and the education research collections from the main library so that they become consolidated and accessible as an education branch library within the new School of Education environs. As of 2014, this plan may be in place as soon as 2016.

Additional Comments

The Educational Resources Collections support classroom instruction across the Ball State campus by making available a variety of media materials. Coursework leading toward teaching certification in Indiana is supported with access to K-12 textbooks, youth books for pre-school through grade 12 reading, and curriculum resources for K-12 instruction. The youth book collection also supports the study of children’s literature in art and English literature courses. These resources are those that are used to construct lesson plans, curriculum, and which can be taken into the classroom for instructional purposes. This is in contrast to the educational content in general collections that focus on theory, case studies, classroom management, and other content that instruct the user on how to be a teacher.

Additional Comments

What makes our curriculum collection unique is that it exists entirely independently of funding or permanent staffing. There has been effective collaboration among various librarians, temporary librarians, interns, and student assistants, who all have worked together to find creative approaches for developing and evaluating the collection. It is a static collection except for donations, yet with teamwork and perseverance, we are proud that we have our unique collection.

Special strengths:
We do have a large children's literature collection that includes older and classic materials as well as current books. The collection is a working collection rather than a historical collection, so it is periodically weeded. Many of the major children/young adult award winning/"best of" books are also collected, well beyond the ALA awards.

Additional Comments
The Ballenger Teachers Center is a heavily used facility. We provide individual and group instruction, and offer a storytime for children accompanied by an adult in 6-8 week sessions in the fall and spring. We also work with area schools to bring elementary and secondary students in to use the resources of the center and of the library to introduce them to the idea of research.

Additional Comments

We have a print collection at the Mary I. Pew Library located 12 miles west on the Allendale campus. It consists of textbooks and lesson planning supplements. The collection is used mainly by content area faculty and their students. All kits, DVDs, and puppets were transferred to the CML-DeVos collection when the Allendale CML was closed in August 2011.

Additional Comments
Illinois State University’s Teaching Materials Center has existed in some way, shape or form since our founding as Illinois State Normal University in 1857 (as a university dedicated to the pedagogy of teaching). Over the years, it has morphed into a vibrant and heavily-used collection by a diverse group of students, faculty, staff, and community patrons.

Varies semester to semester -- we do hours not number of staff. I usually tried to have two workstudy for each hour that we are open, but it has become harder and harder to get them.

Number of hours center/collection is accessible during a typical semester/quarter: 31-60 hrs/wk

Funding
Approximate annual collections budget:
It was about $7,500 but just this February I was told to cut supplies budget to $3,500.

Sources of funding for the collection budget:
School/college/department of education budget, One small gift from the administrator whom started the CRC

The center/collection receives free resources as a textbook adoption or review center: No

Collections
Is there a collection development policy? Yes
Accepts donations: With conditions
The collection has been weeded in the past 10 years: Yes
Resources are actively collected for the following age levels:
Elementary (K-5), Middle School (6-8), High School (9-12)
The following unique types of resources are ACTIVELY collected:
State/local adopted textbooks/materials, Indiana did away with a formal Textbook adoption process two years ago under Mitch Daniels as governor. The Center used to receive one copy of each book up for submission in addition to other resources that came with the adoption. A larger part of our collection are manipulatives. I keep my eyes and ears open for anything FREE from organizations that provide/or used to provide free materials to schools

Online/Digital subscriptions:
TeachingBooks.net since I do not have to pay for it.

Education databases available: access only through main library access

Available equipment:
Audio players/recorders, Video players/recorders, Binding machines, Cameras (still or video), Die-cut machines, Computers (desktop), Laminators, listed above

Other: Ellison lettering machines (4) Accucut machine (1) + approximately 1,200 dies, laminator, dry mount press, papercutters, three hole punches, staplers, GBC binding machine, 30 digital video cameras that circulate, 30 digital voice recorders that circulate, very small reserve collection, live Madagascar hissing cockroaches, live meal worms, live gold fish, earthworm habitat, 3 student accessed computers, Special strengths:
In our education program our faculty are very inquiry based -- hands on. They prefer to teach through trade books as opposed to textbooks. We also are growing a large collection of Critical Literacy tradebooks -- gay issues, homelessness/poverty, deployed family members, incarceration, war and consequences of, death, disease, special needs, bullying, self concept, etc. -- these are highly utilized by our faculty and our students -- these books are not usually found in the public or school libraries and not readily available in the local bookstores. LOVE Amazon. Student work area/collaboration/hangout.

Organization/Access

Catalog and classification system: Locally devised classification, modified Dewey Decimal

Loan periods:
Most items 4 weeks, two renewals. We just started actively circulating to our alums they have the materials for one semester unless we need to recall for a professor. Have not collected fines for about 5 years.

Access privileges:
Teacher education affiliated (students & faculty) Access
Institution affiliated (any student, faculty or staff) Access
Non-affiliated (General public, local K-12 teachers/students, etc.) Access

Specific resources circulate to the following users:
ONLY SOE students and faculty may check materials out unless special permission is given from Director. The live Madagascar Hissing cockroaches, mealworms, goldfish and earthworms go out to anyone.

Equipment circulates to the following users:
Audio players/recorders, video players/recorders and cameras (still or video) circulate to teacher education affiliated borrowers. Rest of the equipment does not circulate.
Additional Comments
We are home to four School of Education student organizations and their materials/supplies. There is lounge area for students lunch and they use our microwave to heat up lunches/suppers. We also house some faculty supplies- portable overhead projector, chart paper, class set of markers, glue, scissors, etc. We provide so much with so little as probably most do!

Special strengths:
The purpose of the collection is to provide students who are involved in method courses or the student teaching portion of their degree requirements with the educational materials for their inspection, evaluation and use. Current (within the last 10 years) textbooks in all curricular subjects, grades Pre-Kindergarten through 12, are collected. The Curriculum Collection is particularly strong in the area of children’s and young adult books. Award winners, honor books and notable books are collected comprehensively. Other examples of literature located in the collection include children’s classics, picture books, poetry, historical fiction, biographies, graphic novels and representative works in a variety of information areas.

Additional Comments

We have a very useful collaborative relationship with the main library at Mount Saint Vincent University. We are thereby also affiliated with the Novanet Consortium for resource sharing within the province of Nova Scotia. We also participate in the Libraries Nova Scotia "Borrow Anywhere, Return Anywhere" (BARA) Initiative. We are fortunate to be affiliated with the Mount Saint Vincent University library, and to have status as a "branch" library within our provincial library consortium (Novanet). This enables us to access a wealth of resources for our users that we would otherwise not be in a position to provide.

Special strengths:
We have a non-circulating research collection of award winning children's literature including both medal and honor books. Here is the link to our searchable database for the awards we collect - http://www.oakland.edu/?id=5409&sid=47 We are actively attempting to complete this collection so that we eventually own all award winning/honor titles for those we collect.

Most equipment circulates only to students enrolled in teacher preparation tracts, per the wishes of the College of Education, which supplies the equipment (digital & video flip cameras, voice recorders, etc.).

Additional Comments

Established in 1957 as a unit within the main campus library, the CML was staffed by Library Science faculty who also did the cataloguing & classification & circulation inhouse for many years. In 1996 the CML was moved to its present location in the College of Education, but it remains a branch library.

Additional Comments

The Seidel School of Education & Professional Studies opened the new Teacher Education & Technology Center (TETC) building five years ago in late 2008 and with it the Curriculum Resource Center. The CRC has evolved over this time, primarily with direct teacher education course needs in mind and will continue to do so as, beginning in 2014, the first full-time professional librarian will serve as coordinator. The Seidel School and the campus library are partnering in an effort to meet or exceed the ACRL guidelines/standards for curriculum resource centers.

Special strengths:

As a continuation of the California State Normal School, SJSU has been collecting children's literature and textbooks since the mid-nineteenth century. Thus with imprints back to the late 1700's, the historical juvenile literature and textbook collection is a rich and deep resource. We continue to actively collect award winning children's literature.

Additional Comments

McLure Library is one of the University of Alabama’s most historic buildings. Built in 1925, for years the building housed the student cafeteria, post office, and supply store. During that time, it housed a soda fountain, a favorite campus gathering place. After World War II the third floor was used as a dorm for male students. The building was remodeled in 1954 specifically for the Education Library. In 1975 it was named in honor of John Rankin McLure, Dean of the College of Education, 1942-1959. The main collection of the library is made up of professional books related to education, which includes sports and physical education. The circulating collection is housed on four of the five stack floors (1, 3, 4, and 5) located on the back (north side) of the building. The Curriculum Materials Center is housed in the basement. It consists of the School Library, a collection of approximately 20,000 trade books for preschool through young adult readers, and the Curriculum Materials Center, with holdings of about 12,000 items including K-12 textbooks, curriculum guides and supplemental classroom materials, and educational media including CD’s, DVD’s, videos, kits, games, and other types of items. An Ellison die-cut machine is available for public use in the Curriculum Materials Center. McLure Library is housed in a three-level building of 23,337 square feet, including the School Library and Curriculum Materials Center on the lower level, reference and periodical areas and public computer areas on the main floor, and study rooms and a computer lab on the third floor. The five levels of book stacks can be reached only from the main floor. Copiers are available on the main floor and the lower level, and microfilm/microfiche reader-printers are located on the lower level.

Other: 40+ puppets; The Aaron Collection--over 300+ titles from donated private collection of award-winning juvenile titles & picture books from Canada, the US, the UK, Australia & New Zealand since 1984.

Special strengths:
Home to the Ira Aaron Collection of award winning juvenile & picture books from the US, Canada, UK, Australia & New Zealand. The Aaron Collection dates back to the 1980s and an endowment enables continuing purchases. Tens of thousands of juvenile titles, ranging from board book to young adult novels. Growing puppet collection. In addition to materials, research and bibliographic instruction available in the center.
Organization/Access

Catalog and classification system: Library of Congress classification

Loan periods:

- Juvenile Collection: Undergraduates--28 days; Graduates--6 mos; Faculty--12 months
- Curriculum Materials--Two weeks for everyone; renewable online twice; not eligible for GIL Express; Media--One week for everyone, renewable twice online. Reserves--Three Days or Faculty member's instruction. Exceptions: Media--one week for everyone w/ two remote renewals. Curriculum Materials--two weeks for everyone w/ two remote renewals. Aaron Collection--3 days, no remote renewals. Reference Materials, Special Permission; Test kits--Restricted to authorized researchers. Requires departmental authorization.

Access privileges:

- Teacher education affiliated (students & faculty)  Access
- Institution affiliated (any student, faculty or staff)  Access
- Non-affiliated (General public, local K-12 teachers/students, etc.)  Access
- Other: We also participate in ILL and GIL-Express, a statewide patron initiated loan system. http://www.libs.uga.edu/access_services/gilexpress.html

Specific resources circulate to the following users:

Everything in the collection is available to teacher education and institutional affiliated borrowers plus through Interlibrary Loan. The only exceptions are that the Curriculum Materials, due to a shorter loan period, do not circulate to GIL Express and the test kits are restricted to graduate students in Counseling and Human Development Services. Tests are owned by that department but we manage them. We do not loan our Curriculum Materials to the statewide borrowing program (not ILL) as the loan period for these materials is too short and the system won't allow these items to be processed for remote lending.

Equipment circulates to the following users: Equipment does not circulate

Additional Comments

We provide study & research space; reference assistance, bibliographic instruction & individual reference appointments. Training in RefWorks is also provided at the CML. We are a pick-up location for GIL Express and Repository requests. Our collection also includes the nominees for the Georgia Children's Book Awards. http://gcba.coe.uga.edu/ and a growing collection of authentic Spanish language materials and American Sign Language materials. The College of Education has an Office of Instructional Technology, which loans most of the equipment listed above.

Additional Comments

The library was downsized in 2012, and the curriculum collection took a hit to get everything to fit in the new smaller space. We also lost a significant amount of tables and study space. The children’s literature continues to be the most heavily used part of the Keffer Library Collection. Circulation of curriculum collection items has become more sporadic and timed with assignments in classes (sometimes they rush in just before class, grab what they need, check it out, then bring it back 2 hours later after class). We are still in a very convenient location for education students, and usage remains good, but they don’t stay to study as much because there isn’t much study space.

Special strengths:

The Alice Hagar Curriculum Center has a dedicated space in the main library where programmed events take place. We have a liaison librarian with the School of Education, enjoy a solid and creative working relationship. We receive some funding from them for collection development. We have annual events that strive to reach out to local schools such as the STEM and STEAM resource day, our multicultural children's literature event and a growing number of library instruction sessions with the School of Education. Our STEM collection won the state Governor's award in 2007.
