

ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

I would like to thank my committee members for their encouragement and helpful input in creating this thesis. Dr. Mark Boren and Dr. Meghan Sweeney both contributed to making this a better thesis than it would have been if I wrote it without their assistance.

I would especially like to thank the chair of my committee, Dr. Katherine Montweiler. It was her Literary Theory class that introduced me to Baudrillard's and Haraway's theories and where I started this thesis as an assignment. Her boundless energy and positive attitude made working on this thesis a great experience.

I also want to applaud the English Graduate Department for giving me a memorable and fruitful two years of learning more about literature and about myself, in addition to the four years spent here as an undergraduate. All of the instructors I have learned under have been an integral part of my college life and they will all be remembered.

DEDICATION

For Mary Holland Grissett and Kendall Oneal Grissett, without whom I would not be here at all.
