

ACKNOWLEDGMENTS

There are several people who deserve credit for this completed project. Dr. Robert Brent Toplin has spent countless hours discussing this project with me, offering editing suggestions, and providing career advice. Dr. Toplin was also kind enough to photocopy certain documents pertinent to this project during one of his research trips to California. To him, I promise that one day I will return to film history. Dr. Kathleen Berkeley has carefully perused almost every word in this paper, crossing out my own word selections in favor of better choices and demanding that I simultaneously meet the demands of traditional historical accounts and break new ground in the direction of cultural history. Dr. Susan McCaffray has consistently recognized where I inaccurately recounted historical events or failed to mention the past in a thesis being written to meet the requirements for an MA in history. My thanks go to my family, for always demanding a progress report on my papers, projects, and life in general. Everyone knows that one day I will be able to say that I am finished. Finally, I would like to express my deepest thanks to my wife Bridgett, who has checked out library books, cleaned the house, fed me, maintained my sanity, paid the bills, and proofread drafts too often for me to count, all while she completed her own thesis.
